This Month's FAQ - How Can I Keep Neighbors From Using My Home Wi-Fi?

Question: I suspect my neighbors are using my Wi-Fi. How can I prevent this?

Answer: You're right to take precautions, as higher data charges, slow speeds, and hacking can result from unauthorized persons using your Wi-Fi (this is known as "piggybacking"). There are many steps you can take to prevent it from happening. Here are three of the most effective:

1. Create a password. Go into the admin dashboard for your router and find the default password. Change it to something difficult to guess. The best passwords are long, random combinations of letters and numbers. Don't worry about having to remember your password — you'll only have to enter it the first time you use a device on the network.
2. Encrypt wireless signals. This task also involves getting into your router dashboard. Once you're there, change your security mode to WPA2, WPA, or WEP.
3. Reduce your range. Place your router in the middle of your home to restrict its range only to authorized users.
